I am trying to store a custom array in TensorFlow that would look something like this: Tensor = [0.0, 0.0, 0.0, 0.0, 0.0, 0.0, 1.0, 2.0, 3.0, 4.0] I am doing this by using a V1 Tensor object to access it. The problem is that when I want to use it again later in code, it returns a tensor that is different than the one defined. Here is a snippet of the code: # This returns a different V1 Tensors than the ones defined in the graph.

V1_Tensors = tf.get_collection("V1_Tensors")
print(V1_Tensors[0])

I also tried using `V1Tensors.append` to append it but this didn't work either. I tried also doing `V1_Tensors = tf.Variable(0.0, name="V1_Tensors")` and then using `V1_Tensors.initialized_value`

= V1_Tensors which also didn't work. I also read the TensorFlow documentation but there it states that Variable objects are used to store variable arrays and I am not trying to store an array. Is there any way to do this? Thanks in advance!

A: In the function `graph.as_graph_def()` that generates the GraphDef file, the names that you assign to tensors are unique and they can't be changed (default name is `ba244e880a`
