must-have feature, especially when you are dealing with very large data collections. As a tax lawyer, we are often asked to prepare complex income tax returns for individuals, families and companies. It is a relatively simple process, but what makes it complicated for our clients is the numerous requirements of the tax code and the complexity of the tax forms. Find, search, and replace is what we do for our clients. It's as simple as that. But, before we get into the details of how you can utilize our experience and experience to help you with your tax return, we would like to share a few short stories with you. The most common situation One of our clients had a joint return with her husband and two sons. He is the primary breadwinner in the family, so he was the one who handled the bulk of the return preparation. At the end of the year, he had an electronic copy of the return and things were pretty straightforward. She was the main breadwinner in the family, so she handled the bulk of the tax return preparation. At the end of the year, she had an electronic copy of the return and things were pretty straightforward. The solution When we prepared the return, we had to enter the information from the tax form, enter their exemptions, calculate the tax and figure out the amount that the filer had to pay. She did most of the calculations. We then got her the summary page that had the tax information, the amount that she had to pay and the exemption amount. We had to adjust it a few times before she was satisfied with the result. She called us because her husband wasn't happy with the amount that he had to pay. He felt that she didn't do enough calculations and that's why she didn't take the amount he owed into account. He wanted to reduce the
