WTY-BatInfo is a tiny free utility that represents the current battery state by its name. It shows the battery percentage, the status message and the battery temperature in a dialog. This dialog allows you to select the options you need. There is a bit of memory used by the program. Therefore the application runs in 32-bit only. The program uses an extension to show battery temperature. The hotkey to display the battery is Ctrl + F12. It is also possible to change the hotkey to that key combination. Details: Version 0.5, 2008/12/31 Notes: WTY-BatInfo will be available on the standard start menu on Windows Vista and Windows 7. The location can be changed in the preferences. On Windows 7 it will be placed in the new start menu. On Windows Vista the menu can be found at the entry for WTY-BatInfo. It can also be run directly from the file system. Caveats: It is not possible to program the dead zone or the temperature. The only way is to use the settings of the "Battery Settings" from the system menu of the Windows Control Panel.
