Schoolhouse Test

Bedding: The items used to keep the spine straight, providing stability, comfort, and therapeutic benefits. Bed Frame: A frame used to hold the mattress and bed linens in place. Bed Spring: Springs located in the foundation of the bed frame that maintain the height of the bed and provide the sleeper with a comfortable place to rest. Bed Tread: A frame used to support the boxspring and mattresses and to eliminate air from under the mattress. Bed Slats: A flat board placed on a boxspring to keep the bedding flat when placed on the frame. Bed Legs: Legs that support the weight of the mattress and boxspring and provide a firm foundation for the bed frame. Bed Set: The entire set of bedding necessary to complete a bed. It consists of a mattress, boxspring, bedframe, bed slats, and bed legs. Bedspread: A soft and fluffy textile that is used to fill the gap between the boxspring and the mattress, keeping the sleeper cool and comfortable. Belly Boards: Boards with an open top that are placed over the mattress and boxspring to keep the sleeper's body safe while sleeping. Billowy: The amount of air, temperature, and fabric that is pumped into the bedding. Cape: An overhang or section of bedding that extends over the end of the mattress. Centerboard: A board used to connect the headboard and footboard. Chromatic: The color of the coverlet. Covers: A protective covering for the bed frame and mattress that protects the boxspring and bedding from wear and tear and reduces dust and debris. Dormers: Windows that protrude from the roof of the house and face the bottom. Fuzzy: The quality of the material used to make the coverlet. The softer, the better. Headboard: A frame that connects to the side of the bed and covers the top of the mattress. Hood: A cover that covers the mattress and boxspring, protecting the sleeper's body from bumps and falls. Larger: The size of the coversheet as compared to the amount of bedding. Lumbar Support: The base that supports the mattress from below and supports the body's natural curves. Lumbar Support: A pad or pillow that
